

The future of humanity depends on you!

In a desperate attempt to save humanity several manned spaceships were sent out of the Solar System, hoping to find worlds where they could establish a colony and start a new civilization. You are part of this group of brave volunteers who left everything behind in the distant past. Your ship successfully landed and deployed the initial base, but now you are on your own, in a race against time to deploy the basic life support systems needed for long-term survival. You were well trained for this, but this is no longer a simulation. You are on a vital mission and cannot afford to make any mistakes.
